PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT SEMINAR

Spirituality and Mysticism in a Contemporary Jungian Psychoanalytic Context

21 September 2019

Melbourne

9.00am – 3.45pm

Sydney based ANZSJA analysts, Judith Pickering and Les Stein will consider the moments that come upon us where we are taken from our day-to-day experience and feel a sense of wholeness, peace, connection and hope. They will explore the origin of these moments. Are they the breakthrough of a divine force, a result of a particular stage in analysis, or the existence of a better relationship with the unconscious? What is the most helpful analytic attitude in the presence of this experience? Jung suggested that the approach to what he called the “numinous” is the real therapy. How is this to be understood? Bion suggested that a patient should become the “O,” the mystery of being? How can one “be” the mystery?
